

Island style

LOOKING FOR A LUXURIOUS island golfing hideaway? Well, we might have found the perfect spot. Over the last few years, the unspoilt Domaine de Bel Ombre region of Mauritius on the south-west coast of the island has undergone a facelift, increasing tourism and attracting substantial foreign investment into the area.

Situated in this region, within the new Villas Valriche development, is the 18-hole Le Golf du Château course, designed by Peter Matkovich. According to developers, the 6 491-metre layout was conceived of as a 'Mauritian links' on the lower part of the course, hence 2 100 palm trees were planted, while the holes on the higher part of the course are parkland.

The Villas Valriche residential estate, which is situated on a former sugar-cane plantation, is presently being constructed around the course and will consist of 288 freehold villas, most of which overlook the course with unspoilt views over the lagoon towards the Indian Ocean. Villa owners automatically become members of the exclusive golf club. For more information go to www.villasvalriche.com
